

Eastern Illinois University
Position Announcement
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, PSYCHOLOGY

The Psychology Department at Eastern Illinois University has an opening for a full-time (9-month) Assistant Professor, tenure-track faculty position beginning August 2023. Duties include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in psychology, maintaining an active research program, supervising graduate student theses, and participating in service to the department and university. Individuals should also demonstrate commitment to diversity and experience with promoting inclusive excellence.

The department serves approximately 435 undergraduate and graduate students. The department has two undergraduate programs (psychology and neuroscience), as well as two graduate programs (clinical psychology and school psychology). The department also houses a psychological services clinic, as well as several research laboratories.

Candidates are expected to have a doctoral degree (Ph.D.) in psychology, although ABD candidates will be considered. The area of expertise is open, but we are especially interested in individuals with a background in clinical psychology, developmental psychology, educational/counseling psychology, neuropsychology, social or personality psychology, as well as any area of applied psychology. Other requirements include demonstrated evidence of teaching excellence at the college/university level (if applicable) and a commitment to research and scholarly work. Demonstrated commitment to diversity and promoting inclusive excellence is required.

Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, vita, three letters of reference, and article preprints/reprints. Application materials must be submitted to Interfolio at <http://apply.interfolio.com/113758>. For questions regarding this search, please contact Dr. Wesley D. Allan, Screening Committee Chair, at wallan@eiu.edu.

Review of applications will begin on December 1, 2022 and will continue until the position is filled.
