

Title: Instructor/Assistant Professor/Associate Professor of Clinical Family and Community Medicine

The University of Illinois at Chicago College of Medicine invites applicants for the position of Assistant/Associate Professor of Clinical Family and Community Medicine in the Department of Family and Community Medicine. The position is for full-time, non-tenure track clinical physician faculty. Responsibilities may encompass full range outpatient (including women's health), inpatient, and obstetric services, though all may not be required. Teaching medical students will be an essential part of outpatient practice. We seek energetic, forward thinking, team-oriented family physicians who are willing to engage in the transformation of our practice to an outstanding patient-centered medical home model, using principles of continuous quality improvement. This position will start initially as primarily clinical, with an expectation of approximately 80% of effort devoted to patient care at the University Village Family and Community Medicine Center, UI Health Pilsen Family Health Center Lower West, and at the University of Illinois Hospital.

The position comes with a comprehensive benefits package and clinical incentive plan. Successful candidate should be an MD/DO, eligible to be licensed in the State of Illinois, board-certified in Family Medicine, who desire to practice in an academic medical center. Proficiency in medical Spanish is preferred but not required.

The expanding Department of Family and Community Medicine currently has close to 50 academic and clinical faculty members. The Department and faculty share a mission to provide excellent clinical care, education and research that meets the primary care needs of a diverse urban population. We are committed to providing care to many underserved communities, including patients with HIV, transgender care, and full spectrum family planning. The Department partners with Mile Square Health Center, a federally qualified health center that serves an inner city population at 7 outpatient sites. The Department runs the UIC student health service, serving over 30,000 students. The faculty and residents provide broad spectrum care in the academic medical center, including maternity care at two outpatient clinics, and through two Family and Community Medicine inpatient services which admit all ages. The department supports a broad range of clinical interests among its faculty and is committed to supporting and mentoring its members.

We have a top-rated Family and Community Medicine clerkship that trains 180 medical students each year and an outstanding Family and Community Medicine Residency with 25 residents. We have a longstanding history of developing educational innovations aimed at preparing the health workforce to meet the needs of our diverse patient populations. We are co-leading one of 48 national Geriatrics Workforce Enhancement Programs (GWEPs) funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA). The department also includes the Midwest AIDS Training and Education Center (MATEC), also funded by HRSA.
